HOW TO USE THIS INDEX

- Products in this index are organized by therapeutic categories. It is best to look at conditions in the first table of contents (page -), and then go to see what formulas are available.
- Using PDF Functions:
 - To search for a particular grouping, formula, or product on this PDF, you can use the Search function.
 - To search a grouping by page number, use the page number search in the bar menu.
 - Page size can be controlled by the percentage view in the bar menu.
- Classical formulas will be listed in pinyin and in italics, followed by a list of names and manufacturers that offer the classical formula. If a formula is based on the classical formula but adds additional ingredients, that product will be followed by an asterisk (*).
- Products from modern manufacturers not based on a classical formula will be listed in the correct category, below the classical formulas.
- All products are followed by a code abbreviation of the manufacturer in parenthesis, listed below. “EG” refers to extract granules made in Taiwan, using the common English language name. “PM” refers to patent medicines.
- Specific therapeutic indications and herbal ingredients for each product are not included. These can be found in the product guides of each manufacturer.
- For therapeutic indications and herbal ingredients for the classical formulas, one can use any of the standard formula books, including:
 - Andrew Ellis, Notes from South Mountain, The Moon Publishing, Berkeley, 2003. (Good source for “Extract Granules from Taiwan.”)
 - Jake Fratkin, Chinese Herbal Patent Formulas, The Clinical Desk Reference, Shya Publications, 2001.
 - Jake Fratkin, Essential Chinese Formulas, Shya Publications, 2013.
 - John Chen and Tina Chen, Chinese Herbal Formulas and Applications, Art of Medicine Press, 2009.
 - Scheid, Bensky, Ellis and Barolet, Chinese Herbal Medicine Formulas and Strategies, 2nd edition, Eastland Press, 2009.
- For patent medicines, see:
 - Fratkin, Chinese Herbal Patent Formulas, The Clinical Desk Reference, Shya Publications, 2001.
 - Jake Fratkin, Essential Chinese Formulas, Shya Publications, 2014. NEW!
